

First announcement

The First International Multidisciplinary Anal Cancer Conference is to be held in Aarhus, Denmark on November 5-6, 2020

The aim of the conference is to bring together clinicians, researchers and multidisciplinary groups involved in anal cancer treatment for research and development.

The program will include

- Radiotherapy and systemic treatment
- Delineation and treatment planning
- Acute and late toxicity
- Translational research
- Radiobiology and Anal cancer biology
- Delineation workshops
- Workshops on trial designs in primary and advanced disease
- Poster and oral abstract presentations

The ambition is to strengthen international collaboration and research development in anal cancer.

Please mark the dates for this event. More information will follow.